THE SIMPLE GREEN TEAM ROLLS UP THE SLEEVES & GETS TO WORK!

Sept. 17, 2010 – Huntington Beach, CA. Sunshine Makers, Inc., the maker of Simple Green® All-Purpose Cleaner, is proud to be a part of the 2010 Home Depot Foundation's Habitat for Humanity project in Pike's Peak, Colorado!

This week Pat Sheehan, Scott Preis, and Greg Frankenfield all attended the Home Depot annual Marketing Summit and then joined forces with the Home Depot Foundation and Habitat for Humanity to help build a community in Pike's Peak, Colorado. We spoke with Scott Preis this morning, who says over the sound of pounding hammers, "We're building houses, garages, fences and more for this new community. There are over 600 people out here working on this – it's really amazing how much we can do when we work together." Scott also reports that this is not his first year taking part in this project, "last year we built a park, but this year, this whole community... it's really huge, and it's all getting done."

This project is a joint effort between the Home Depot Foundation and Habitat for Humanity, two of the country's most recognized charitable organizations, working toward the common goal of providing affordable housing to all. Please visit their respective websites and learn more about each organization and the amazing work that they do.

Let's have a huge round of applause for our fellow Sunshine makers out there in Colorado, making a huge difference in the lives of some very grateful families.

Way to go Guys!

TRULY AN AMAZING GROUP OF PEOPLE!

Meet Noah 😊

Upon final inspection and completion, Noah and his family will be the recipients of one of the homes that we worked to build on Wednesday. This is what it is all about and why participation in events such as this is so gratifying. This is also why our plan will be to continue support of this awesome program for many years to come.
